If defense counsel know the chemists are available 9 out of 10 times it will be a plea. Judge's appear to be on our side and kind of hint at defense counsel that if they require the chemists to come in it may be a heavier sentence for defendants. Let me know when I can bug you for a few minutes on the phone.

Yep . . But I would prefer both to plea or stipulate. :)

Thanks Annie. You're the best. Can I call you on that and another case? I know you've answered the same question before regarding you testifying to Stacey's initial testing.
